- I can talk about colors and materials.

Let's Explore!

Peter and Vanessa look for a birthday present. What do they find at the florist?

* "Florist" can mean a business or a person who sells flowers.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Peter: Vanessa, what a beautiful day! The florist shop beside the CBR Bank is open. We should take a look.
- Vanessa: Why?
- Peter: Maybe we could get some flowers for Sally. It's her birthday tomorrow.
- Vanessa: I love this store! The classic architecture is stunning!
- Peter: It's in a great location, right downtown.
- Vanessa: The high ceilings, the big windows and the color ... pink!
- Peter: The flower displays are so colorful - red, purple, green and blue.
- Vanessa: How about these? She loves roses.
- Peter: How about we get her a dozen yellow roses?
- Vanessa : That's a good idea and a glass vase too!
- Store Clerk: That's $18.50, thank you. Could I have your e-mail address for our database?
- Peter: Peter.smith@mail.com. Please wrap them. Hey, what are you doing?
- Vanessa: I'm paying, don't worry. You can pay for the cake.

Learning Points

The Long A Sound

The most common long a sounds come from a-e, ai, ay and ei words.

A-E Words: made, bake, cake

AI Words: aim, chain, mail

AY Words: day, say, may

EI Words: eight, weight, vein

Like other long vowel sounds, the long a sound is voiced. When you say it, you can feel vibrations in your throat.

It is also a tense sound - your tongue and throat muscles are tense when you pronounce this sound.
